

All Things Ignatian

Building Bridges, Connecting the World

Mission

The Asian World Center was founded in 2006 and is focused on constructing and engaging in a unique relationship among the cultures of Asia and those of the Western world. Through comparative study, collaborative research, and intercultural exchange, the Center takes a multifaceted and comprehensive approach towards the education of the self and society. The final aim being to build a better world for all humankind by bringing together the necessary tools for continued understanding and progress.

Creighton University President Timothy R. Lannon, S.J., meets with Tibetan Buddhist monks from the Gaden Shartse Monastery along with Asian World Center director Dr. Maorong Jiang.
